REPUBLICAN SENATOR BLOCKS SENATE ATTEMPT TO ENDORSE PRESIDENT'S PEACE NOTE.

ARRAIGNS BERNSTORFF

Scores German Ambassador for His Statement Approving the Conference Suggestion—Continue Debate Thursday.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington, Jan. 3.—Action on Senator Hitchcock's resolution to have the Senate endorse President Wilson's peace note again was deferred today, after a long debate. The resolution went over for discussion again tomorrow at the request of Senator Hitchcock, who, after a spirited debate in which Senators Lodge and Borah, republicans, opposed action at this time.

Lodge Scores Bernstorff.

The debate was marked by an attack by Senator Lodge upon Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, because of the latter's action in issuing newspaper statements supporting the notes. That action, Senator Lodge said, added to misunderstanding about its purposes and added to his opinion that it was timed and intended to aid Germany in making the peace terms she seeks.

Senator Lodge expressly said, however, that he accepted in full faith the declaration of the president that the note it was in no way associated with peace proposals of the central allies.

"It will be observed," Senator Lodge said, "that the president found it necessary to say that in making his offer at this time, he was embarrassed because it might seem to have been prompted by the recent statement of the central powers that the president agreed that it was not. Of course, I repeat the president's statement. I never impute a motive. The president said that his note was in no way associated with the German note.

Different Interpretation.

"But unfortunately I believe a different interpretation has been placed upon it abroad and very generally at home. Those who sympathize with Germany regard the note as sincere, but it was done at a time when Germany made up its own time, and on its own terms. It was regarded unfavorably by those who sympathize with the allies. It couldn't be otherwise, coming at the moment it did."

Discussing the German ambassador's action in giving out a statement regarding the note, Senator Lodge said he thought it was justified in mentioning the ambassador's name despite the unwritten rule in congress not to mention names of foreign diplomats in debate.

"I think I am justified," Senator Lodge continued, "initing this statement of the German ambassador in showing why the president's note has been so much misinterpreted. But that misinterpretation is so wide over the world that it presents a very serious object to our endorsing the note."

"We have been neutral in this war. It is quite as possible to be unneutral in entering on negotiations for peace as in war. If an interpretation of the note is so general that we are in danger, when we do not want or do not intend to adopt that note of saying to the whole world that the senate or congress are vanging themselves on the side of one belligerent in bringing about peace."

Gallinger Offers Substitute.

"I do not wish to see this country ranged on the side of either belligerent. Personally, I am unwilling to have my vote interpreted as having helped on one side or the other, and I do not want to be ranged against the side which, I believe, personally, is fighting the cause of liberty against that of autocracy."

At the conclusion of the debate for the day, Senator Gallinger, republican leader, submitted a substitute for Senator Hitchcock's resolution, to say:

"That the senate of the United States, in the interest of humanity and civilization, expresses the sincere hope that all the world failed to receive more American goods than in 1916."

American exports to Germany during the year were more than $1,000,000. Austria-Hungary took less than $100,000.

The Gallinger resolution also was held over to be considered tomorrow when Senator Lodge will resume his argument.

Debate Is Resumed.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Senator Hitchcock's resolution to have the senate endorse President Wilson's note came up again in the senate today and the Nebraska senator urged its adoption.

In framing this resolution, he said, "I have carefully avoided reference to this portion of the president's note which might provoke controversy."

No Controversy On Aim.

"I realize there may be two opinions as to some of the president's suggestions, but I do not see how there can be two opinions on a simple proposal that in the interest of humanity and civilization this country has appealed to nations at war to state terms upon which peace might be made."

Senator Hitchcock said there was recent precedents for the president's action, and referred to former President Roosevelt's peace overtures to end the Russo-Japanese war.

WANTS COMMISSION FOR PUBLIC DOMAIN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

St. Paul, Jan. 3.—Creation of a public domain commission and reorganization of state public health service were two of the more important recommendations contained in Governor Burnquist's inaugural address today.

Establishment of a public domain commission was urged with a view to conserving and considering utilization of Minnesota's 30,000,000 acres of undeveloped land, its iron products, water power and water transportation. This department would comprise many of the present departments acting in a supervisory capacity.

Urge Appropriation By Congress at Once To Buy Danish Isles

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Washington, Jan. 3.—Secretary Lansing today conferred with Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee and urged congress to soon provide the twenty-five million dollars to pay for Danish West Indies and also determine a form of government for the newly acquired islands.

The administration, it is understood, favors a bond issue to pay for the islands. Senator Stone favors a quasi military form of government until congress provides some other.

"My idea is," Senator Stone said, "that an officer of the government should be appointed governor of the islands to assume charge that a customs office and controller be formed, also to look after finances, and they should work out the details of a provisional government."

RUSSIANS REPULSED ON MULDAVIAN LINE

Berlin, Jan. 3.—On the Moldavian front yesterday strong attacks were made by Russian-Rumanian forces. Today's official announcement says the assailants failed with heavy losses to the attackers.

Two towns as well as several positions were captured by the Teutonic forces.

In interior of Rumania the Russians and Rumanians have been driven back west and south by the French and the invaders are now in front of the fortified Russian position. In Dobrudja the Russians are retreating vigorously, but have been driven further back.

GERMANY REPORTS ABUNDANT SUPPLIES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Amsterdam, Jan. 3.—A Berlin semi-official telegraph today says that this year's bread-corn harvest will exceed 1,500,000 tons. The deficiency in potato harvest, which is considerably under the average, will be chiefly offset by the good turnip crop. The reduction in the use of barley for brewing purposes by fifty per cent will help greatly in overcoming the effect of the bad potato yield, the advice states.

Germany's stock of cattle is declared in a dispatch to have increased since the beginning of 1916 by more than 400,000 head, and the stock of pigs by more than 4,000,000, "so that Germany can reckon with an improvement in the supply of milk and fat, while Rumanian booty guarantees a great improvement in the supply of fodder."

France during the year more than doubled her purchases here, but still fell a bit short of the billion dollars.

BOARD CONTEMPLATES SURVEY OF SCHOOLS

ACTION TAKEN AT MEETING ON TUESDAY LOOKING TOWARD A COMPREHENSIVE INVESTIGATION.

FAUST TO GATHER DATA

Superintendent is instructed to Secure All Possible Information on Subject and Report to Board.

Action concerning a thorough survey of schools in Janeville was taken at the monthly meeting of city school board Tuesday evening at the high school building. It appeared to be the sentiment of the board members that such an investigation of conditions by outside parties was advisable in order to secure an impartial decision as to the needs of the city in the way of improved buildings and a more modern educational system.

Will Secure Information.

On the motion of Francis C. Grant it was ordered that Superintendent H. H. Faust gather all possible information on a survey which might be needed for the work with reference to the possible cost, the ground which should be covered and other details, and submit the information at a future meeting of the board.

The board has welcomed the invitation of the directors of the Commercial club to meet with them at their weekly meeting next Monday and to receive some suggestions from the directors in regard to a school survey. An effort will be made to have some material ready dealing with the proposed investigation which will be presented to the Commercial club for discussion.

Superintendent Faust at the board meeting stated that the probable cost of a survey would be $1,200 to $1,500. It would require the services of three or four men who would go into the various phases of the Janeville school situation in a thorough manner. The estimate of cost, he thought, would include the preparation of a printed report which would be distributed to the public.

Mr. Faust pointed out the possibility of securing the co-operation of some foundation which is interested in educational problems. He had already taken the liberty, he said, of communicating with the Russo-Japanese Foundation in New York City, but had been informed that all departments were engaged at the present time. It might be that a foundation of this character would be willing to stand a part of the expense, Mr. Faust suggested.

"I am opposed to that," declared J. T. Hooper, "we have a survey, we don't need financial assistance from any outside party. We can afford to stand on our own feet."

Aid From State Possible.

Superintendent Faust said that the state department of education has one man who has recently been added to the force, Mr. Tyson, who has done survey work of the character proposed for Janeville, having been statistician on the survey conducted for the schools of the state of Maryland. It might be that he could be secured as one of the men to aid in the local survey. Mr. Tyson will be in Janeville within a short time, in any event, to conduct a series of efficiency tests, Mr. Faust announced.

It was the general opinion of the board members in view of the discussion which followed the December Twilight club meeting, that it might be well to call a special session of the board, following the conference with the Commercial club directors, and after data had been secured on the question of a survey, for the purpose of taking up separately the whole matter of the proposed inury into school conditions. If such a meeting is not called it is probable that the subject will receive attention at the February session of the board.

Other business of a routine nature was transacted at the meeting last evening. The contract for the new high school building was awarded to E. Faust for the carpenter work, and to George and Clemens for the plumbing. Miss Claire N. Wilke of Milwaukee was appointed as teacher of the additional first grade at the Jefferson school.

CLAIM DRINK CAUSE OF SUGAR ROBBERY

Allen J. Pierce Waives Examination, While Companion Demands the Preliminary.

Blaming Liquor as the direct cause of his trouble, Allen J. Pierce in municipal court yesterday waived examination on charges of burglary in the nighttime and willingly entered a plea of guilty to stealing five one hundred pound sacks of sugar early yesterday morning from the Schreyer warehouse on North 11th street, August (1916). Dr. Wm. Pierce, the police say, told him was with him in the robbery, named an examining witness. It was set for next Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Judge Maxfield stayed sentence until this time.

Pierce claimed that he was intoxicated during the afternoon, the result of taking a drink from a saloon which he offered him, and left home as the two were returning from a hunting trip.

"One drink led to another," he said, "and then we went to the brewery to get some beer. I had not had a drink for six weeks."

Pierce said he did not break the lock from the door of the warehouse but while Dr. Pierce went into the entrance as he was returning from the brewery saw the lock lying on the snow.

Opening the door, he lit a match and peeped in, seeing the sacked sugar and other grocery supplies. He said they went back to a barn and he came into a supply of sugar. Incidentally, he did not notice being found in the barn a hat at the back of Fred Salhoff's residence at 1720 Highland avenue, Salhoff being his father-in-law. Not only did Pierce steal himself, but he rolled one sack back beneath the back porch of James Gregory, at the corner of Washington and Olive streets, and dropped two more on the steps, using in carrying the five at the grocery store of Byron Jones on North Washington street.

Both men were held under $500 bail.

Night Captain Thomas Morrissey's Janeville police department stars anxiously awaited today a reply to their challenge to the city firemen, issued yesterday for a match game on the bowling alleys. Night Despatch Sargent George Dickenson at the station last evening received a challenge from a party named Muenchow who represented himself as captain of a bowling team, known as the Carpenters. He thought no game would be started until he told him what Capt. Muenchow said he would have to get in communication with Capt. Muenchow. Muenchow said he would.

WISCO SHOW ME CAR IN CITY NEXT WEEK

BELOIT AND HUDSON SHAKE IN MANCHURIA

Fennimore, Wis., Jan. 3.—The Wisconsin "state fair on wheels," after nearly three months of travel in Wisconsin and adjoining states, to show Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa what Wisconsin can grow, arrived here today on the second week of a three-weeks' tour, this time telling the story of Wisconsin agriculture to Wisconsin communities.

Arrived at an obscure hamlet midway between Mukden and Port Arthur in Manchuria that he was but one of the three white men in a radius of more than a thousand miles square.

While Ayer was registering proper surprise the clatter of hoof beats drew the American and his guide to the door of the tent and a muddled rider pulled up at the door.

It was William Webster, a Hudson, Wis., boy, who attended Beloit College, later graduated in law at the University of Wisconsin.

Webster was on his way from Russia to Port Arthur on urgent Red Cross business. Lieutenant Ayer was making a semi-official tour of inspection of the battlefields of the Russo-Jap conflict for a study of the terrain and its effect on the outcome of that struggle. Neither Badger boy knew the other was in Manchuria.

Webster resigned his post as secretary to Andrew L. Carter to China Paul Krueger, formerly a professor at the University of Wisconsin, to take up service with the Red Cross. Lieutenant Ayer is assigned to the fifteenth United States infantry on duty guarding the International railway near Pakin, China.

SOMETHING UNUSUAL FROM THE COAL MAN

Trio of Local Dealers Have Scales Which Give Extra Pounds Per Ton.

At least three coal dealers during the past portion of the present winter have given Mr. Consumer more than a full ton of coal even though the price has been paying tag with the price for some time.

Most interesting little piece of information was found in the report of City Sealer of Weights and Measures Walter Helmels, presented yesterday to the city commission and covering the quarter ending Dec. 31.

"Variations on loads of coal not over 25 to 30 pounds per ton are not approximately correct, some being over weight and some being over weight," was a notation in the report. One yard was giving thirty-five pounds extra. From another the excess was twenty-five pounds, and from the third it was the same. But from the fourth Mr. Buyer was losing out; his ton was ten pounds short. During the quarter closed $90 scale weights were used in weighing coal and some were inaccurate and scaled. Other weighing and measuring contrivances were either adjusted, condemned for repairs or condemned entirely.

As registrar of vital statistics the health officer reported fifteen marriages, nineteen births, sixteen deaths and the supplementary report, a total of fifteen.

"Of the deaths reported," read the communication, "five were between 60 and 70 years of age, three nearly 80, and three were infants from a few hours to a few days old.

Consequent to the verified winter no doubt, Dr. Buckmaster was forced to report these deaths as the result of pneumonia. Diseases of the heart took four; appendicitis, cancer, premature birth, obstruction of bowels, miasma, malnutrition, leprosy, lungs, uremia and apoplexy, one each.

It was decided to await information pertaining to the expenditure of the funds previous to the order for their payment being passed.

GREATEST AUTO SHOW TO OPEN SATURDAY

LAST PRACTICE GAME FOR BADGERS TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 3.—The greatest auto show in the world, according to all advance indications, will open Saturday in Grand Central Palace, New York, to continue one week.

While monster exhibitions of automobiles and accessories were held in London, Berlin and Paris before the war, it is the opinion everywhere that the forthcoming show will eclipse anything the world has ever seen. It certainly will be more of an American show than any other ever held, for American manufacturers will be represented almost solely.

The show will be the seventeenth annual exhibition to be held under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Inc.

Exhibitors will include, besides those who make automobiles from the tires to the tops, the small accessory manufacturer, and the side line salesman.

There will be numerous exhibits of exhibition, but the main group will include products of those manufacturers whose plants have been the basis of the growth of the automobile industry.

Every one of the sixteen types of bodies, and every price at which cars can be obtained will be represented. There are few changes in body design, the main upset being in the interior structure, new waves, heights, sizes, and forms, representing the various styles of motor construction, will be present in profusion to couch and splutter their merits to the visitors.

Sixteen types of bodies, designated as roadster, coupelet, coupe, convertible, coupe, cloverleaf, touring car, sedan, touring car, convertible touring car, sedan, convertible sedan, open sedan, limousine, open limousine, brougham and landau, will be on display.

Devices and accessories will be given space on the second floor of the palace, more than 225 exhibitors of this class of automobile products will have booths.

A big basketball season is before us. Big followers of the popular winter sport. The Lakota club Cardinals have a long and hard schedule to play. For the third year they are out to take the laurels of the middle west twice in the past in as many years. They will be given a chance in this writing, and the Cardinals will have won the championship.

Manager George W. Caldow has booked contacts with the best teams possible not only in local territory.

And if these teams live up to their reputations, they have established in their respective communities, the Cardinal floor, then Cardinals backers will witness more games of the calibre of the past two in the schedule.

The two contests with Walt Tippett's team, two wonders and even the game with the Hamlin Park Triangles was a fast one. The Lakotas had to strain every effort to secure a single victory but more than ever this season the little god of luck seems to be hovering over the Cards.

Listed above are but some of the teams who have booked dates with Manager Caldwell. A number of these teams wrote for games while the Cardinal manager signed others up on his own accord.

The Detroit Y. M. C. A. team is the cream of Michigan. Its first defeat in two seasons and its first beating on its home floor since came last week, when Chicago Y. M. C. A. five on their eastern trip tripled the score on the Detroiters. In connection with this contest former Janesville high school players are watching with interest the work of Herman Siegel, former Wausau high school player, whom they met several years ago at the state championship. Lewis at Appleton, Kieboe for Toward for the Chicago.

At Detroit he threw nine bats from the field.

Brooklyn, N. Y., runner up in the eastern basketball league last season, and present leaders of the organization, start a western trip Jan. 22. They will be at the Auditorium Feb. 10.

Fond du Lac sports again this year have hired the Oswego N. Y. team to represent their military company. The easterners are now on their way west, playing as they travel. They will be seen here playing under Oswego colors, after which they are to be known as Co. E.

The Flint, Mich., Blues have been signed up and will play here on their annual tour through Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Indiana champions of 1915-16, the Whiting Owls, whom the Cardinals defeated, 51 to 31, on April 1, last year, will be seen here again this year. Thus far this season the Owls have been going like house afire and all day long, winning eleven in sight. They have won eleven of twelve games played, the only defeat being administered them by the Chicago West Side Blues.

Mrs. Walte, the aged mother of Mrs. Jennie Brown, died at the home of her daughter on Friday. The funeral was conducted from her home on Sunday afternoon.

Walter Babcock, and family were visitors at the G. W. Goodrich home Sunday.

Clarence Bilyea is in a Chicago hospital, where he will submit to an operation one day this week. His friends hope he may soon recover.

Mrs. Bilyea is ill in bed at this writing.

The Rebekah Lodge treated Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Aley to a surprise party on Monday night, their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. A splendid time was enjoyed by all, cards and games being played. Mrs. Grant was in charge of the lodge, presented the couple with a handsome silver sandwich tray in token of the esteem of the members. Mrs. Eli Milton presented some very nice flowers, and all departing wished them many happy returns.

Clarence Bilyea is in a Chicago hospital, where he will submit to an operation one day this week. His friends hope he may soon recover.

Mrs. Bilyea is ill in bed at this writing.

The Rebekah Lodge installed their new officers on Wednesday night.

Mr. Wells of Fontana was calling on Walworth friends Saturday.

Mrs. Ruby B. Babcock of Bartie Creek, Mich., is here visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Smith of Big Foot, and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Behrens and baby visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Steinke, of Chicago during the holidays.

J. P. Perrin and family were guests Sunday of Mrs. Robert Knopp of Big Foot Prairie.

Mr. and Mrs. John Voss of Big Foot Prairie were guests in Janesville on New Year's day of Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Binnewies.

Mrs. Myrtle Harney Lewis of Hebron.

Manager Caldwell has a game booked with the Browns, too. Last year the Cards sent them home with the stings of two defeats, 40 to 26 on Jan. 29, and 28 to 17 on Feb. 20. This year's team is stronger this year. They have defeated the University of Chicago conference and are the equal of the I. A. C. Sonnenberg, a former Northwest basketball man, and in his last year at school all-conference center, is holding down the pivot job for the Browns, and to date this season not a Brown pitted against him has stopped him from scoring. Extra tall and heavy, and wiry as kitten, he is the hardest kind of a hard kind to guard. The Browns are to be here on Jan. 13, a week from Saturday night.

A game will be played with the Oshkosh Federals and also with Fogarty's team from Rockford. Fairbanks Morse athletes of Beloit had a fine season. What the Cards will do to them isn't for print. Beloit will have to use a baton and a blotter to recover from.

The Peoria Tigers, Illinois champs, who gave the Lakotas hard tussle to win, 35 to 25, a year ago, is another class team this year. Manager Caldwel has arranged to have the Tigers over from the Auditorium some time this spring.

Saturday night "Herc" Edler (we don't appreciate the variety nom de plume) "Monk," will bring his armament here in the attempt to trim the Cards. He will have Jack Mitchell and Bill Knapp in his lineup, and as a result local fans are organizing to back the Cards to victory, even though Edler, last year, was one of the favorites of the team, and their leader is going to ride the strong boy to death. From what has been said about town lately Edler, who appears, will be "The Goat" Saturday evening.

Jim Scott, White Sox pitcher, has passed up vaudeville as a source of revenue during the winter.

The actor's mode of living is not for the making of a good athlete, according to Scott. This winter he intends to spend in Florida among the palms.

Word comes from Toledo, O., that Roy Breseehan, manager of the local club in the American Association, had signed Roy Hartzell, former captain of the New York Americans, to play third base for Toledo. Hartzell is now in Denver, Colo., having signed a free agent last fall by the New York club, having served ten years on the team. Breseehan said his object in signing Hartzell was to have an experienced man at third corner.

Callahan succeeds in building up a formidable team what a record Al Marmax ought to make in 1917.

Ever since he has been with the Flappers, he has had bad mediocre support, yet he has been one of the sensations of the league since the start of his career. Given proper support he will make any hurler in the league huddle to beat him out for pitching honors.

REDUCE THE DOGS JOB FOR ENGLAND

London, Jan. 3.—Thousands of dogs are being kept to keep up the high cost of eating in this country by figuratively snatching from the mouths of humans potted steaks, mutton chops and other expensive things. This was brought out in parliament the other day when it became known that there were demands taken to "reduce the 2,000,000 dogs that inhabit the British Isles."

The suggestion of the government to raise the dog tax from $1.50 to $5 is one of the proposed steps to "reduce the dogs." But it is pointed out that the breeder and wolf-to-do owner will not be deterred by an increased tax in favor of the dogs. It is declared that dogs were ever more useful than today. At the head of a London dog home society gets more requests for dogs than in peace time—so many women are nervous now that their husbands are in the army and they buy dogs to guard their homes. He says that to forbid dogkeeping as a form of wasteful extravagance would cost more in human happiness than it would save in human food.

That makes really patriotic people boil with rage to see fashionably dressed women with anywhere from a half dozen pampered pets. These are the dogs accused of eating the sound steaks.

"This Day in History.

Thirty-five years ago today a man in Chattanooga was still taking seriously one of his New Year's resolutions.

"That's it. You never know your luck," observed some sage or poet.

Perhaps we never see it off enough to know it.

An expedition setting forth to the tropic wilds under the direction of the Smithsonian Institute includes man who can talk monkey talk, and it's pleasant to see that these annoying persons can be made useful.

A MOMENT WITH THE MUSE

The Clown.

It used to be that years ago a man would very seldom go to theater or music hall if they didn't have them all to himself. And yet when they would be amused it seems they almost always used to have the jester and the clown who'd bring the smile and chase the frown; a comic tale he would relate or sing a song of ancient date and though a bit out of touch, they say, "the fellow's droll, in sooth."

The human race to stand the gaff of life's hard bumps must have its laugh, we like at times to grin and snort and see the merry fools cavort. It's true no jesters swing their bladders, bellies and everything and yet they're much the same who fill the theater and vaudeville.

They go to such a place and watch an actor's funny face. I like it down in the rows where I can see upon his nose and at his eyes the paint he smears; they often hide advancing years. And though he tells an ancient wheeze I'm sure he always tries to please. And when his useful years are o'er, when he can get the laughs no more, altho' he won't very much let's have a pleasant word for such; altho' he won few leaves of bat let's make him think so anyway and say to him, "By Jiminy, how comical you used to be!"

You Know Him.

"How is every little thing?" "Where do we go from here?" "Have you got a light?" "How is your cold?" "Smoke?"

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a man who cares for me too. He is a good fellow and has only one bad habit, which is smoking. Our tastes are very much alike and we get along fine together, because I do what he wants me to and I pretend not to notice when he is selfish and thoughtless that I sometimes worry about our future. When he is away from me I often get about melancholy and is perfectly happy in the society of men. I am never happy unless I am with him. He often says that he is going to phone me at times, but when the time comes he has forgotten and doesn't phone until several hours later. All the time I am expecting to hear from him. This makes me very unhappy. He says that I am the only girl he cares for, and I believe what he says is true, because we are going to be married. But I am not the only girl he is interested in, because if we go places together and he starts talking to another girl he forgets I am around.

A few weeks ago I was sick in bed. He sent me flowers and phoned to see how I was. Then when I was better and couldn't come on the couch downstairs he didn't come to see me. He told my mother to tell me to hurry up and eat well because he had not exercised and missed our daily walk together.

The boy next door, who is a few years younger than I am, has always liked me very much. He was so different while I was sick. He sent me flowers, too, and dropped in every day to say how I was. When I got better he came over in the evening and read to me and brought me dainty things to eat. He seemed to think only of me, while the young man I am engaged to thinks only of ANSWER.—Perhaps a tablespoonful at each meal, with cereal, in soup, or made up in bran gels. More may be taken if necessary.

Household Hints

THE TABLE.

Roast Spareribs With Oyster Dressing.—Select two pieces of spareribs the same in shape and size, weighing from one and one-half to two pounds each. Wash well, dry thoroughly, season with salt and pepper and a good pinch of sage. Let stand one hour. Make an oyster dressing of two cups drained oysters, three cups grated bread crumbs, one-half cup milk, one egg, salt and pepper. Mix dressing well. Lay one of the spareribs flat on table and fill evenly with the dressing; lay the other piece of ribs on top of dressing. Tie both firmly together with a strong cord and have a moderate two-hour basting often. Make gravy in usual way, then add one-half cup boiled and mashed chestnuts. This roast is delicious and takes the place of more expensive meats, such as chicken, goose or duck.

Potted Turkey and Lamb Liver.—Get a small lamb's liver, slice and put it in a pan with the turkey (also sliced). Add just enough water to cover, put on a tight cover and simmer until tender. Then cool, chop fine, put through potato ricer, add just enough of stock to make a smooth paste; add one tablespoonful of butter, salt and pepper to taste; carefully stir until well blended. You may also add mustard or cayenne and boil, and this will taste like pate-de-foiegras.

Dish Pudding.—One package dates, one cup English walnut meats, three-fourths cup sugar, six whites of eggs (cast). Put in pan, set pan on other pan of hot water, boil twenty minutes in slow oven. Serve with whipped cream. This serves twelve people. The yolks of the eggs can be used in the following cake: Two-thirds cup butter, two cups sugar, three-fourths cup milk, one cup flour, four eggs and one-fourth cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder.

Cottage Pudding.—One-quarter cup of butter, two-thirds cup white sugar, one cup sweet milk, one egg, two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, four level teaspoons of baking powder, one egg. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder. Add alternately with milk and beat well, pour into a well-greased mold and steam two and one-half hours.

Egg Bread.—Cut stale bread into thin chips and sautee in good lard and butter or bacon drippings until delicate brown; in three cups bread chips sautee eggs; beat well and add one-half cup milk; pour over bread in basin and stir while frying until golden brown crusts form; season well.

Steamed Pudding.—Put into a bowl, the city with which she was totally unfamiliar. She has studied a pocket map and knew where to transfer to reach the street named in the advertisement. Although it was only a little after six it was very dark for it had begun to rain dismally. The narrow and dark where she found herself when she got off the car and for a moment, she felt tempted to turn back, but only for a moment.

"If I can get this work and help pay the doctor bill, it may seem to Tom when he knows about it that I have the intention in me to make a woman after all."

The houses grew more shabby and crowded as she walked down the muddy hill. It smelled of stables and the sidewalk suddenly ended.

"Would you mind seeing me across the tracks?" asked Marjory after a moment's silence during which she had hoped he would offer to do it.

They had to make a wide detour at the tracks on account of the mud.

There was a perfect labyrinth of rails over which engines were snorting and clashing.

"The city dump is right here," explained the officer as he observed Marjory holding her handkerchief to her nose.

"Inside the city limits!" exclaimed Marjory in surprise.

"Yes, that is the way they do things. They talk about germs and burn their garbage where hundreds of people get the full benefit of it."

"Now you will be all right. Your number is right at the top of the hill. My beat ends here or I would show you the place."

"You'd better go home by the McBride street car," he called when she was a few yards away from him.

"Go, dear," she said quietly, drawing the girl toward her and kissing her. "I'll see that Tom wants no trouble. But aren't you afraid to go alone?" she added. "It is quite dark."

"Nothing will happen to me. It is not late," replied the girl, fastening her coat well up around her neck and running on her hat.

"That girl is going out to try and get a private pupil in shorthand; she has seen an advertisement in the paper," explained Mrs. Gerard. "She certainly is taking hold of this situation with vigor. No one can say she is afraid of work." Miss Volmar's eyes shone at this praise of her darling.

"There is the best possible blood in her veins. There is no reason why she should not make a fine woman if she can only be waked up," continued Tom's mother.

"Mother," whispered Marjory, coming into the sick room, "may I speak to you minute?" Mrs. Gerard rose and followed her daughter-in-law out of the room. "See here, Mother," Marjory pointed to an advertisement in the evening paper. "Here is someone who wants a tutor in shorthand. I can teach that. I believe I will go at once and see about it. A personal interview is much more likely to succeed." Mrs. Gerard looked bewildered.

"I don't understand," she said.

"I must earn some money. We can't settle down on Aunt Lois. There is not much that I can do, but I could give a private lesson."

"Tom would not have to be away from Tom very long, and you are here to help while he is so sick as to need constant care. Tom's mother did not reply, and looking up Marjory was surprised to see her eyes full of tears.

DIPHTHERIA OR TONSILLITIS?

The condition called follicular tonsillitis, an acute inflammation of the tonsils in the crypts of which yellowish or whitish cheesy masses appear, is often a puzzle to the physician, he isn't able to assure a patient he is not diphtheritic. This leads to misdiagnosis or commission. If the physician is too positive that he is dealing with a non-diphtheritic inflammation he may neglect the opportunity to take a culture and secure bacteriological aid and the course of the illness may show him and all the world the error of his method. On the fortunate other hand the physician may be a person of unwise suspicion, never quite willing to believe his own eyes; he takes a culture, which proves positive, and then the patient is isolated "quarantined" for a few weeks, although the slight sore throat clears up about the time the health department representative calls to lay down the rules in such cases.

People who take a one-sided view of their own side—sometimes censure the physician for this. The first right is the right of the public safety, and no individual's convenience can ever be permitted to arrogate the public's right to safety first. Better a hundred cases of tonsillitis inconvenienced by enforced isolation than one case of unrecognized throat spreading pestilence throughout the community. The physician who is responsible for the isolation of a case of apparently simple tonsillitis is at least a man with honor and courage to do as he would be done by.

As a matter of fact, diphtheria germs are often found present in the nose and throat when the individual child or adult is not ill, or has "only cold in the head" or a trifling sore throat. Such individuals are the carriers who, perhaps unconsciously, infect others through personal contact, and certain of these others are likely to suffer severe illness. It is a question, in each case, of the individual immunity or lack of immunity.

Not only is this true of diphtheria. It is just as true of pneumonia and all so-called "colds." Trifling "head colds," slight sore throats—these carry the catarrhal infections about recklessly. Some of the victims suffer serious or maybe fatal consequences.

A child should never be sent to school when there is a sore throat, tonsilitis or "cold" of any sort in the home. All of these indoor germs are quite as catching as diphtheria, and, in totals far more fatal.

It is high time to look upon a "common cold" as the thing it is—a common menace. Diphtheria, as we know it today, is not out what more alarming. So whenever a doctor is enforcing an isolation of a case of "simple cold," tonsilitis or sore throat, he is doing precisely what the community expects every doctor to do—protecting the public health. And no decent citizen can utter a single word of criticism under the circumstances.

"THIS ONCE."

Once upon a time I ran across a magazine article in which readers were asked to send in what they considered the most terrible word in the English language. "Bitch," "Death," "Alone," "For-ever," were some of the words that it won't hurt me."

Or you discover at night that you haven't been outdoors all day. You know you ought to have some exercise and consider the thought of a walk, but it would mean changing your shoes, and you'd really rather sit by the fire and read that tempting new magazine and so you say to yourself, "Well, I guess it won't do any harm if I do go without exercise this once."

The Child Uses it in His Teasing. "Mayn't I stay up later this once?" "Mayn't I skip my practising this once?"

So the child teases until one comes to hate the sound of "This once."

But it was not so much of the phrase that I was thinking. Children say "this once."

Children use it to excuse themselves for doing something wrong or foolish or inexcusable. You Ought to Clean Your Teeth Again.

For instance. You have your teeth all cleaned for the night. Some one pretises on you to take a bite of an apple or a sweetmeat. You know you ought to clean your teeth again but you say to yourself, "This once."

Or you bear some enticing bit of gossip and are tempted to repeat it. It is against your principles but you know the person to whom you are talking would be so interested and excited over it. "This once" you say to yourself, "I will tell you my secret and open your lips and let out the words no power on earth can bring back again."

Are You Intoxicated? The question is not as impertinent as it sounds. You may be a real teetotaler and yet be "intoxicated"—that is, poisoned by the gases that come from imperfect digestion. The products of food putrefaction are taken up by the blood and often poison the entire system. Cut out meats and starchily foods for a while. Eat Shredded Wheat with milk or cream for breakfast; eat it with stewed fruits and green vegetables for dinner or supper. It will cure auto-intoxication and make a new man of you. SELFISHNESS.

Selfishness is poverty. It is the most utter destitution of the human being. It can bring nothing to his relief; it adds soreness to his sorrows; it sharpens his pains; it aggravates all the losses he is liable to endure and when goaded to extremes often turns destroyer and strikes its last blow on himself.

inert, doggedly patient, until the opening of the back office door prompted them all one chair toward the consulting room.

"I shall be just across the Street," she said at last. "Nearer than I am at the hospital."

"You will be much farther away. You will be married."

"But we will still be friends, K?"

Her voice was anxious, a little puzzled. She was often puzzled with him.

"Of course."

But, after another silence, he assumed her. She had fallen into the way of thinking of him as always belonging to the house, even, in a sense, belonging to her. And now—

"Shall you mind very much if I tell you that I am thinking of going away?"

"K."

"My dear child, you do not need a roomer here any more. I have always paid for, even in the small services I have been able to render. Your Aunt Harriet is prosperous. You are away, and some day you are going to be married. Don't you see—I am not needed?"

"That does not mean you are not wanted."

"I shall not go far. I'll always be near enough, so that I can see you—you changed this hastily—so that we can still meet and talk things over. Old friends ought to be like that, not too near, but to be turned on when needed, like a tap."

"Where will you go?"

"The Rosefields are rather in straits. I thought of helping them to get a small house somewhere and of taking that bad closed about her.

Harriet found her a little later, face down on her mother's bed crying as if her heart would break. She scolded her roundly.

"You've been overworking," she said. "You've been getting thinner. Your measurements for that suit showed it. I have never approved of this hospital training, and after last January—"

She could hardly credit her senses when Sidney, still swollen with weeping, told her of her engagement.

"But I don't understand. If you care for him and he has asked you to marry him, why on earth are you crying your eyes out?"

"I do care. I don't know why I cried. It just came over me, all at once, that I—It was just foolishness. I am very happy. Aunt Harriet."

Harriet thought she understood. The girl needed her mother, and she, Harriet, was a hard, middle-aged woman and a poor substitute. She patted Sidney's moist hand.

"I guess I understand," she said. "I'll attend to your wedding things, Sidney. We'll show this street that even Christine Lorenz can be outdone!" And, as an afterthought: "I hope Max Wilson will settle down now. He's been none too steady."

"Do you ever think of yourself?" she cried. "Have you always gone through life helping people, K? Save something! I should think not! You spend it all on others." She bent over and put her hand on his shoulder. "It will not be home without you,"

To save him, he could not have spoken just then. A riot of rebellion surged up in him, that he must let this best thing in his life go out of it. To go empty of heart through the rest of his days, while his very arms ached to hold her! And she was so near—just above, with her hand on his shoulder, her wistful face so close that, without moving, he could have brushed her hair.

"You have not wished me happiness, K. Do you remember, when I was going to the hospital and you gave me the little watch—do you remember what you said?"

"Yes"—huskily.

"Will you say it again?"

"But that was good-bye."

"Isn't this, in a way? You are going to leave us, and I say it, K."

"Good-bye, dear, and—God bless you."

CHAPTER XX.

The announcement of Sidney's engagement was not to be made for a year. Wilson, chafing under the delay, was obliged to admit to himself that it was best. He was genuinely in love, even unselfishly—as far as he could be unselfish. The secret was to be carefully kept also for Sidney's sake. The hospital did not approve of engagements between nurses and the conductors.

His mind refused to go forward to the unthinkable future. Instead, he was looking back—back to those days when he had hoped sometime to have a wife to talk to about his work, that beloved work that was no longer his. And he had lost her absolutely, lost her without a struggle had been with himself, to remember that he had nothing to offer but failure.

Sidney's eyes were on the tall house across. It was Doctor Ed's evening office hour, and through the open window she could see a line of people waiting their turn. They sat humbly, staff. It was disorganized, etc. for discipline.

Sidney was very happy all that summer. She glowed with pride when her lover put through a difficult piece of work; flushed and palpitated when she heard his praises sung; grew to know, by a sort of intuition, when he was in the house. She wore his ring on a fine chain around her neck, and grew prettier every day.

K had postponed his leaving until fall. Sidney had been insistent, and Harriet had topped the argument in her businesslike way. "If you insist on being an idiot and 'admitting the Rosenfeld family,'" she said, "wait until September. The season for boarders doesn't begin until fall."

K waited for "the season," and ate his heart out for Sidney in the interval.

John Rosenfeld still lay in his ward, inert from the waist down. K was his most frequent visitor. As a matter of fact, he was watching the boy closely, at Max Wilson's request.

"Tell me when I'm to do it," said Wilson.

"and when the time comes, for God's sake, stand by me. Come to the operation. He's got so much confidence that I'll help him that I don't dare to fail."

Luckily for Sidney, her three months' service in the operating room kept her and Carlotta apart. For Carlotta was now not merely jealous. She found herself neglected, ignored. It ate her like a fever.

But she did not yet suspect an engagement. It had been her theory that Wilson would not marry easily—that, in a sense, he would have to be coerced into marriage. She thought merely that Sidney was playing a game like her own, with different weapons. So she planned her battle, ignorant that she had lost already.

Her method was simple enough. A new intern had come into the house, and was going through the process of learning that from a senior at the medical school to a half-baked junior intern is long step back. He had to endure the good-humored contempt of the older men, the patronizing instructions of nurses as to rules.

Carlotta alone treated him with deference. His uneasy rounds in Carlotta's precinct took on the state and form of staff visitations. She flattered, cajoled, looked up to him.

After a time it dawned on Wilson that this junior cub was getting more attention than himself; that, wherever he happened to be, somewhere in the offing would be Carlotta and the Lamb, the latter eying her with worship. Her indifference had only piqued him. The enthroning of a successor galled him. Between them, the Lamb suffered mightily—was subject to frequent "bowling out," as he termed it, in the operating room as he assisted the anesthetist. He took his troubles to Carlotta, who soothed him in the corridor—in plain sight of her quarry, of course—by putting a sympathetic hand on his sleeve.

Then, one day, Wilson was goaded to speech.

"For the love of heaven, Carlotta," he said impatiently, "stop making love to that wretched boy. He wriggles like a worm if you look at him."

"I like him. He is thoroughly genuine. I respect him, and he respects me."

"It's rather a silly game, you know. Do you think I don't understand?"

"Perhaps you do. I—I don't really care a lot about him, Max. But I've been downhearted. He cheers me up."

Her attraction for him was almost gone—not quite. He felt rather sorry for her...

"I shall finish my training. I made that a condition."

"Then, in a burst of confidence: "I know so little, K, and he knows so much! I am going to read and study, so that he can talk to me about his work. That's what marriage ought to be, a sort of partnership. Don't you think so?"

K nodded. His mind refused to go forward to the unthinkable future. Instead, he was looking back—back to those days when he had hoped sometime to have a wife to talk to about his work, that beloved work that was no longer his. And he had lost her absolutely, lost her without a struggle had been with himself, to remember that he had nothing to offer but failure.

Sidney's eyes were on the tall house across. It was Doctor Ed's evening office hour, and through the open window she could see a line of people waiting their turn. They sat humbly,

"I'm sorry. Then you are not angry with me?"

"Angry? No." She lifted her eyes to his, and for once she was not acting. "I knew it would end, of course. I have lost a—a lover. I expected that. But I wanted to keep a friend."

It was the right note. Why, after all, should he not be her friend? He had treated her cruelly, hideously. If she still desired his friendship, there was no disloyalty to Sidney in giving it. And Carlotta was very careful. Not once again did she allow him to see what lay in her eyes. She told him of her worries.

The Lamb was hovering near, hot eyes on them both. It was no place to talk.

Sidney would be at a lecture that night. The evening loomed temptingly.

"Suppose you meet me at the old corner," he said carelessly, eyes on the Lamb, who was forgetting that he was only a junior intern and was glaring ferociously. "We'll run out into the country and talk things over."

She demurred, with her heart beating triumphantly.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

JOHN YOU NEED A HAIR-CUT. YES, I'VE BEEN THINKING ABOUT IT MORBIDLY FOR WEEKS.

HAIR

As we have implied before, if not mentioned outright, life is a combat with fatalistic forces. On the tops of our heads there is either hair or baldness. If there is hair, it will grow. If there is baldness, it will spread. We must have our hair cut, or we must rub ourselves with tonic. We are in for our heads, coming and going.

There are people who are not annoyed by their heads. They take hair cutting as matter of course. Hair cutting is not a matter of course. After several years of philosophizing about hair cutting, and after going through several certain periods of our life when we determined never to have our hair cut again as long as we lived, we have at last bowed down to the inevitable and decided not to buck the growth of our hair, not to curse the destiny which gives us hair to be cut every so often, at the cost of a half hour of our time and 25 cents of our money—but we do not, even yet, take hair cutting as a matter of course. Hair is as much of a natural phenomena as the whirling of the celestial spheres (and a whole lot more bother).

And what happens as soon as we become reconciled to our hair? It turns

A SENATOR'S VIEW OF A WAY TO KEEP
BOYS ON THE FARM

(EXCERPT FROM THE GAZETTE)
Washington, Jan. 2.—A popular magazine some months ago sent a letter to all our Senators and Congressmen asking them what, in their opinion, would help most to keep the boys on the farm. A certain Senator, noted for terseness of speech and brevity of answer, sent the following in answer to five words which I command to all American citizens as being adapted to solve more agricultural problems than those one. The Senator's reply was: "Make farming profitable by the business world which will give the fundamental basis of all permanent success. Many farmers in the past have made the mistake of thinking that they could get rich by skimping the soil, and many business men likewise have made the mistake of thinking that they could get rich by skimping the farmer. The only way that the farmer can make a permanent success of farming is to keep up the fertility of the soil, and the only way that the business world can be permanently successful is to insure the continued prosperity of the farmer."

The use of leguminous plants has been advocated ever since the days of the Roman empire and probably long before that, because they not only were paying crops, but had the added advantage of gathering from the air and depositing in the soil more nitrogen than they expected. The legend should be the model for every intelligent business man in his dealings with the farmer.

When a banker loans a farmer money, he should loan it to him at a rate of interest and for the kind of investment that will enable the farmer not only to pay back his loan, but to gain for himself a margin of profit. The railway manager who makes rates for the farmer for shipping fertilizer and other merchandise to the farmer, and for shipping the farmer's produce to market, should make rates that will leave the farmer a margin of profit. The middlemen who handle the farmer's produce should endeavor to get him such prices and should charge him only such commisions as will leave the farmer a margin of profit. In the long run, it is only thus that the banks, the railroads and the commission men can increase their own profits.

If the leaders of the business world will lay this lesson to heart; if on New Year's day throughout this country they will take the legume as their motto, it will do more to increase production and reduce the high cost of living than any other designation put in their place. Prices also were transformed into francs and centimes from marks and pfennigs.

MOST OF THE MUNICIPAL OFFICIALS under German rule were of Prussian origin and wed with the German troops. The others, the inhabitants of the town, though very old or very young, as all those of military age had either been taken into the German army or had fled to France—had never had any actual experience of local government and were incapable of understanding the public utility or caring for the health or sanitary condition of the people. It was found necessary to appoint French administrators and these were chosen from among officers who had been wounded in the war or who had fallen sick during the campaign. In one locality a military mayor was nominated. He was a captain who had lost his right arm in battle. For two years he had carried out the functions of his office and so successfully that the citizens governed by him declare they have never been more wisely ruled.

One of the first tasks undertaken was to set again in motion the educational system which had been interrupted by the hostilities. Classes were formed for the children of both sexes and these were placed in the charge of sisters of a religious order which devotes itself to education. There was some difficulty at first owing to the pupils knowing no language than their local dialect. They showed such zeal, however, in acquiring French, that within a few weeks the teacher was able to carry on the lessons. When Prince of Constance recently visited the classes he was amazed at the change brought about in so short a time.

French officials and the people of Alsace themselves ascribe the readiness of the Alsation to adopt French ideas and education to the fact that they have in part realized their dream of being reorganized as a people. At any rate it is evident that although the German guns, everybody in the reconquered territory at present speaks French. The children at their names on the streets use nothing but French expressions. Workmen and work-women going to and from the factories and fields, though they rarely speak French, do so in the case of elderly people who cannot change their lifelong habits—utter a word in anything except French. In the cafes and hotels and in the stores French is everywhere used, while in the churches the sermons are now preached in French.

The missionary program was then taken up. The Rev. Fred Brown of China, team leader, explained certain details of literature and spoke of the Missionary Prayer League. The Rev. Dr. Bright of Albuquerque, New Mexico, gave a very interesting discourse on "Why the Americans Fight Us." Dr. Bright's official duties have led him into association with many of the men prominent on both sides of the issues and of the boundary line, and he spoke as one who, being on the spot, knows the facts. He is to treat conditions on the border tonight with the aid of a stereopticon, and will throw up other light on border problems and the issues between the United States and the Latin-American nations south of us.

Mr. Chew followed with his lecture on Korea.

The program for tonight includes an address on China by the Rev. Fred Brown and Dr. Bright's address on New Mexico. The former indicated that the usual week of prayer services have arranged to unite their meeting with the missionary campaign again tonight. The meeting will be in the
